WORLD THAT HAILED BIRTH NOW STIRRED BY KIDNAPING CASE

Infant Best-Known At Time Of Birth; Had Been Guarded

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The entire world which hailed his birth as that of no other infant of modern times today was stirred by the fateful news that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was held by kidnapers.

Tremendous enthusiasm everywhere greeted the announcement of his arrival on June 22, 1930, which was the 24th birthday of his mother, the former Anne Morrow, daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey.

Telegraph wires, cables, wireless vibrations carried the announcement a seven and one-half pound son was born to the famous "Flying Colonel" and his wife, Lindbergh, with his "lonely eagle" nose light from New York to Paris the highlight in aviation history, was 28 at the time.

An immediate response on the part of prominent and humble persons everywhere came to the news in thousands of congratulatory messages which poured in on the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J., where the world's most famous baby was born.

Within an hour of little Charles' arrival, the radio broadcast a song written in honor of his birth.

The late Senator Morrow first told a friend of the event.

"I'm a grandfather," he exclaimed. And it's a boy. But don't you tell anyone."

But an army of reporters had besieged the house for days in expectation of the new arrival, and the secret could not be kept from them for long.

Soon a procession of friends and strangers streamed toward the Morrow estate. All hoped to catch

OHIO IS MOBILIZED IN ANTI-HOARDING CAMPAIGN IN STATE

Blank Applications For "Baby Bonds" Are Prepared

CLEVELAND, Mar. 2.—Ohio's division of the nation's anti-hoarding forces was ready today for its war on "slacker dollars."

Seventy-five thousand blank applications for Uncle Sam's "baby bonds" have been prepared and now await the start of the national anti-hoarding campaign on March 7 so that they can be distributed to Ohio hoarders by an army of volunteers in every hamlet, town and city.

Plans for the state campaign were revealed today to International News Service by former United States Senator Allen Pomerene, who has been named president of the Hoover Anti-Hoarding Campaign Committee in Ohio.

Organizations are being completed all over the state to handle the campaign, Senator Pomerene declared. Solicitors are being recruited in cities, towns and villages from civic, religious and patriotic groups of all kinds. Chambers of Commerce are being utilized as the nucleus of the organizations everywhere.

Each community is working out its own method by which to extract unemployed dollars from vases, pitchers, old socks or beneath mattresses. These policies will vary according to the number of workers engaged and the local situation.

COUPLE KILLED IN BLAST OF GASOLINE

DELAWARE, O., March 2.—Double funeral services for a 22-year-old man and his young wife were planned today as the tragic aftermath of a gasoline explosion near Harlem, O.

Victims of a blast that rocked their home while they were preparing breakfast, William Fleak and his wife, Anita, 22, died of injuries yesterday in a Columbus hospital.

The couple's seven-week-old son sleeping in the next room was unharmed in the explosion. The husband poured gasoline onto a fire, believing it was kerosene, neighbors thought.

Fleak and his wife had been married three years.

CHILD IS RESCUED FROM RIVER DEATH

ZANESVILLE, O., Mar. 2.—Seven-year-old Edward Norstland, found floating in the Muskingum River yesterday, told his chums today how it feels to be near death.

Shirley Callahan, barge deck hand, found the boy floating in the river. He was revived and rushed to his home. Except that he suffered from exposure, he appeared to have sustained no ill results.

Chinese Retreat At Every Point Except Woosung; Chapei In Flames As Japs Reach Objective After Severe Battle

GENEVA, March 2.—Japanese troops have been ordered to cease hostilities in Shanghai, Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate, informed President Joseph Paul-Boncour of the League of Nations council today.

The order was given, Sato declared, because the recent Japanese offensive had been successful to the extent of driving Chinese troops twenty kilometres (12.4 miles) from the international settlement in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, March 2.—The Japanese army today scored a smashing victory all along the Shanghai battle front.

The Chinese army, at 6 o'clock tonight, was in retreat at nearly every point except at Woosung where the commanding officer refused to obey Gen. Tsai Ting-Ki's order to withdraw.

SENATE COMMITTEE LEARNS OF ROMANCE AT WOMEN'S PRISON

Told Employee And Murderess Carry On Affair

MARYSVILLE, O., Mar. 2.—The Ohio Reformatory for Women, where the state sends feminine offenders to isolate them from good women—and good men—was scandalized today by charges that one of its inmates has transgressed.

A convicted murderess, attractive and 24, has been accused of defeating all the state's efforts to deny its inmates masculine affection, by stealing the love of a man whose heart belongs, at least legally, to a matron at the institution.

Sensational charges about the alleged affair, involving Miss Inez Palmer of Bellaire, O., and Redman Norris, husband of the matron and an electrician at the reformatory, were made to the state senate welfare investigation committee yesterday.

Following the accusations by the matron, Mrs. Myrtle Norris, the investigating committee returned to Columbus where it was to hold a meeting today to decide upon the next step in the inquiry.

Mrs. Norris charged that the reformatory romance between pretty Miss Palmer and her husband was approved, if not actually abetted, by Superintendent Louise Mittendorf.

Miss Palmer, a life term who was convicted of murdering a Vinson County man when she was 19, and Norris often went for automobile rides together, Mrs. Norris said. She said Norris explained that he was teaching the young prisoner to drive.

The comely Palmer girl, attractive despite her uniform, was a maid in the Mittendorf home, and Norris often stayed there overnight, Mrs. Norris said. She declared she first learned about her husband and the prisoner from inmates' gossip.

"Mrs. Mittendorf," she related to the committee, "was always too busy when I wanted to talk to her about it," she said. Mittendorf knew that the two were friendly.

Norris and Miss Palmer, summoned before the committee, denied they were as friendly as Mrs. Norris charged. Asserting she was never intimate with Norris, Miss Palmer said she met the electrician at his wife's request.

"She wanted me to teach him to drive an automobile," she said. Miss Palmer said the gossip in the reformatory got busy with the automobile driving lessons as a basis and wove a great story about her. Finally, she said, she discontinued her relationship with Norris.

Norris under questioning said he had been alone with Miss Palmer only once.

Mrs. Mittendorf was equally emphatic in her denials. To her knowledge, she said, the two were never alone together.

Inmates testified that Norris was seen kissing Miss Palmer and that the girl visited him at his work bench daily to take him food.

COLUMBUS, O., March 2.—Members of the state senate welfare investigating committee today left for Delaware to probe conditions at the Ohio Girls' Reformatory.

"We haven't any charges to investigate; we only want to look around," declared Senator William Dunlap (D) of Bowling Green, a member of the committee. A court stenographer accompanied the committee.

From a high observation point within the international settlement with the aid of field glasses the Japanese could be seen advancing.

They moved cautiously, apparently fearing mine traps.

The Japanese laid down a heavy barrage on each village before entering.

It was a curious sight, sitting here on the roof of the hotel that houses international news service correspondents and watching Japanese troops in their methodical, deliberate advance.

Enormous fires burned in the Chapei district adjoining the international settlement and for some distance to the north.

Apparently the North Station, center of Chinese resistance for three weeks, was in Japanese hands, but the smoke was so thick it was impossible for the British outposts to make out what the exact position was in Chapei.

The whole district, however, was believed to be in Japanese hands. The Chinese attempted to make a stand on their strong second line of defense based on Nanziang.

Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, commander of the nineteenth route army, moved his headquarters to Nanziang two weeks ago.

If this line falls the Chinese intend to withdraw to their third line based on Soochow.

The Chinese apparently have little ammunition. Throughout the day few Chinese shells were observed bursting in the Japanese ranks though the Japanese guns kept up a steady bombardment.

Thousands of newly arrived infantry from Japan were thrown into the line on the northern end of the fighting front. They broke through Chinese resistance west of Kiangwan and entered Tachang without serious fighting.

At this hour (7 p. m. 6 a. m. East. ern Standard Time) the Japanese swung south from Tachang and it

MARCH LION ACTS LIKE LAMB

NAPOLEON, O., March 2.—Deputy sheriffs who armed themselves with rifles and tear gas bombs yesterday when a circus lion escaped from a truck today were subjected to joshing about their precautions.

The lion later was found in a barn, apparently trying to hide. Witnesses said it cowered in fear and offered no resistance to capture.

Residents of Napoleon ran from the streets when news spread that the animal had escaped when a truck in which it was being transported to the D. T. & I. Railroad was damaged.

After wandering to the Miami and Erie canal bed, where it was confronted by workers who prepared to attack it with shovels, the animal turned and fled.

Harold Arberg, 42, assistant treasurer of Olympic Auditorium, dropped dead from a heart attack while counting the night's receipts.

PLAN LEGISLATION DESIGNED TO CHECK EVIL OF KIDNAPING

Federal Action Is Anticipated After Lindbergh Case

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Redoubled efforts to procure federal legislation to enable authorities to cope with the growing evil of kidnapping were expected in the capital following the abduction of Chas. A. Lindbergh Jr., twenty-month-old son of the flying colonel and the former Anne Morrow.

Representatives from St. Louis and Chicago received little encouragement when they appeared before the house committee on judiciary committees last week in support for a federal kidnapping bill introduced by Rep. Cochran (D) of St. Louis.

At that time Attorney General William D. Mitchell was criticized for his opposition to the proposed legislation. His stand, it was said at the department of justice, was taken because of the reduced financial condition of the country.

Appeals for anti-kidnaping legislation were made by Roy Steffens, chief of the kidnapping squad of the Chicago police department; Walter Weisenberger, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; former Rep. Cleveland Newton of St. Louis; Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of Chicago's "secret six"; and Police Chief Joseph A. Gerk of St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The fullest cooperation of the department of justice in running down the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby was pledged today by Attorney General Mitchell.

Although the crime is a state and not a federal one, the attorney general suggested that it may develop a federal aspect, and in any event he has notified the state police of New Jersey of the department's desire to cooperate to the fullest extent possible.

OHIO YOUTH IS KIDNAPED ON WAY TO SCHOOL

Contractor's Son Is Taken From Street By Two Men

NILES, O., Mar. 2.—Twelve-year-old James De Jute, son of a prominent Niles contractor, was kidnapped by two men as he was enroute to school today, according to police.

The abduction occurred on a street near the main thoroughfare of the city and a short distance from the lad's home.

Riding in a tan roadster, the two abductors stopped only an instant while one of the men grabbed the boy and placed him in the machine after a brief struggle.

The machine bearing the youth and his kidnapers sped northward out of town, pursued by a machine driven by Glenn Burnside who had witnessed the abduction and gave chase.

The high-powered automobile driven by the kidnapers quickly outdistanced Burnside and he lost sight of the machine a short distance from town.

Catherine Lambing, a maid at the home of Reverend H. L. Woodbine, also witnessed the kidnapping and notified police.

Aided by the child's father, James De Jute, Sr., police began a systematic search for the abductors. Authorities in surrounding towns and cities were notified to be on the lookout for the kidnapers' machine.

Police said the license on the car had been issued to a man in Warren and authorities of that city were asked to aid in the investigation.

The boy, attired in a leather coat with a sheepskin collar and a gray cap, left his home shortly after 8:30 a. m. He was seen walking down Lincoln Ave. toward the schoolhouse when the tan colored machine drove up.

One of the men was standing on the running board of the car and as it stopped near the boy, he grabbed James and started to take him to the machine. The lad fought desperately against his assailant but was quickly overpowered.

BOSTON PITCHER IS STABBED IN FIGHT

BREWTON, Ala., March 2.—Big Ed Morris, star Boston Red Sox pitcher, was near death in a Century, Ala. hospital today, suffering from knife wounds.

Early today doctors announced he had only a slight chance of recovering.

Morris attended a fish fry in his honor here Monday night, and according to friends, suffered the wounds in a fight with Joe White. While the two were wrestling on the ground, witnesses said, White stabbed Morris twice, the knife blade barely missing the pitcher's heart.

White was seized by police and is being held without charges.

Morris was to have left today for Savannah, Ga., to join the Boston training camp.

LINDBERGHS THINK PROFESSIONALS TO BLAME IN KIDNAPING

Reactions Of Famed Couple Described By Policeman

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh believe that a gang of professional kidnapers stole their 20-month-old son from his nursery crib.

Deputy Police Chief Charles E. Williamson, of Hopewell, one of the first officers to reach the Lindbergh home after the kidnapping today told of how the noted parents of the missing child felt and acted.

"Chief Harry Wolf and myself arrived at the house," said Williamson. "Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh and several others met us at the door. They ushered us into the living room where the colonel told us what had happened."

"Both were standing up well under the circumstances and while we questioned them for a few minutes they sat in chairs, close to each other."

"Colonel Lindbergh was the calmer of the two, although Mrs. Lindbergh did not cry. She cried after we left, I was told."

"Colonel Lindbergh took us out in the yard and we found the ladder about fifty feet from the house. Both Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh accompanied us up to the nursery room."

"Colonel Lindbergh told me that he knew as soon as the report came to him that the baby was gone that he had been kidnapped. I asked the colonel if he had heard any unusual noise. He replied that he had not heard any noise except the wind blowing around the house."

"While we were outside we followed footprints for a distance and decided that the kidnapers' car must have been parked on feathered Lane (the road leading to the Lindbergh estate)."

"There were auto tracks on this road past the old bridge, on the dead end of the road. The footprints lead across the field."

"Colonel Lindbergh said he could see no reason why anyone should want to kidnap his baby."

"I pointed out to Mrs. Lindbergh that there were no clothes gone from the bed. Mrs. Lindbergh then said: 'The poor child has had a cold and will suffer. We have been doctoring the baby for several days.'"

"I asked Colonel Lindbergh if he suspected anyone. He replied: 'No.'"

"Colonel Lindbergh said the nurse last saw the child between 7:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. As we stood in the room he pointed to the unlocked window and said: 'They must have gotten in through that window.'"

"Mrs. Lindbergh, during our questioning, interrupted and asked the colonel: 'Don't you think we should notify our mothers immediately?' Mrs. Lindbergh then took the phone and called her mother at Englewood, and a few minutes later placed a long distance telephone call to Detroit, and talked to Colonel Lindbergh's mother."

"I stepped out of the room while she was calling, and I did hear her say when she reached her mother: 'Our baby has been kidnapped.'"

"I told them that from the preparations made, the kidnapers must have been professionals, determined to get the child at any cost."

"Yes," Mrs. Lindbergh replied, "and it probably would have happened even if we were at mother's."

"The colonel then asked if he ought to look around some more for the footprint in the mud or should we wait for the state troopers."

"I replied 'I guess we'd better wait for the troopers.' The butler had been at the phone several times talking to the state police whom he called after talking with me at 10:20 p. m."

"Corporal Wolf of Lamberville then arrived, closely followed by Major Charles A. Schoeffel. More troopers continued to arrive and a quick search was made of the grounds."

"I noticed that Mrs. Lindbergh was very calm at first but she seemed to be showing the strain with all the excitement. I suggested that she take something for her nerves. She said she was all right and that she would wait until later."

REPORT CHILD STOLEN IS ILL

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The kidnapped baby of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was suffering from a severe cold.

Added to the anguish of a mother whose only child had been stolen was the worry of Mrs. Lindbergh over the natural health of her son.

"The poor child has had a cold and will suffer," said Mrs. Lindbergh. "We have been doctoring the baby for several days."

FOUR STATES COMBED BY SEARCHERS AFTER INFANT IS MISSING

Child Stolen From Crib Tuesday Night; Famous Father Aids Search But Mother Suffers From Strain; Many Claws Investigated

(BULLETIN) HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, famous parents of kidnapped "Lindy, Junior," are willing to pay the $50,000 ransom demanded by those who stole their son.

The willingness of the Lindberghs to pay the sum demanded as well as the fact that a ransom note was actually left in the nursery crib by the kidnapers was disclosed for the first time today by a close friend of the Lindberghs.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The kidnapers of "Lindy, Junior," left a calling card—a ransom note—in the nursery before they stole away through the night with the 20-month-old son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

While the exact contents of the note left behind was undisclosed, a state trooper today admitted there was such a note in existence.

The greatest secrecy surrounded the note and conjecture as to the amount asked by the baby-stealers ranged from $50,000 to sums running into six and seven figures.

As every available policeman and detective in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware sought a

BELIEVED NON-PROFESSIONALS

CHICAGO, March 2.—Kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., are non-professionals of low mentality, in the opinion of Lieut. Albert Hoffman of the Chicago Detective Bureau, expert in abduction cases.

"No organized gang of experienced kidnapers would select Col. Lindbergh's child as their victim," Lieut. Hoffman said today. "Veterans would understand the high esteem in which he is held. They would know the intense 'heat' would spoil their chances."

trace of the missing million-dollar baby, a promising clue was reported from Philadelphia.

Authorities of the Quaker City reported that a mysterious taxicab was seen at dawn with a heavy set man and a woman clasping a child within the machine.

Police Sergeant Charles Patterson saw the taxicab.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The detective genius of four states combed roadway and alley today for Baby Lindbergh, 20-month-old heir to the fame and fortune of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib as he slept and his parents and authorities were convinced the job was accomplished by a professional kidnaping gang.

A night and part of a day have passed and only a few slim clues as to the kidnapers have developed. The entire force of the New Jersey state police concentrated in the area surrounding the Lindbergh isolated country home in the belief that the kidnapers were hiding the baby somewhere in the surrounding dense woods.

Careful search was made of each of the numerous deserted farmhouses in the region.

The famous father of the missing baby aided the troopers in their search. Colonel Lindbergh looked haggard and sleepless from his all night vigil—far different from the spic-and-span "Lindy" of other days.

"I intend to remain awake until my baby returns home," Colonel Lindbergh said when a friend suggested he get some sleep.

"My wife, Anne, is in bed. I guess the strain was too much for her."

PHYSICIAN CALLED The Lindbergh family physician was summoned to look after Mrs. Lindbergh.

"We have received several leads, but most of them have fallen down," said Colonel Lindbergh.

"The police have leads now in

"CURLY-HAIRED"

HOPEWELL, N. J., Mar. 2.—Curly-haired, blue-eyed, and chubby perhaps best describes the appearance of the sturdy 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., kidnapers' victim.

The world-famous infant is described by those who saw him as the miniature image of his world-famous flying father, Colonel Lindbergh.

A friend of Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who observed the baby in the kindergarten of his aunt, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, said of him today: "The baby is just learning to talk. What does he say? Oh, mostly the words that all babies learn to say first."

"He is an unusually sturdy youngster, and seemed exceptionally bright and alert. He is well into the toddling stage, and as tall as the average baby of his age."

"His complexion is fair. And he looks so much like his father."

Atlantic City, and Yarbley, Pa. I don't now how important they are but we are clutching at every straw.

Another tip sent the Colonel speeding away to Flagtown, N. J., fifteen miles distance.

He was accompanied by two state troopers and Oscar Busch, well-known trapper in the region.

The boy, attired in a leather coat with a sheepskin collar and a gray cap, left his home shortly after 8:30 a. m. He was seen walking down Lincoln Ave. toward the schoolhouse when the tan colored machine drove up.

One of the men was standing on the running board of the car and as it stopped near the boy, he grabbed James and started to take him to the machine. The lad found desperately against his assailant but was quickly overpowered.

BOSTON PITCHER IS STABBED IN FIGHT

BREWTON, Ala., March 2.—Big Ed Morris, star Boston Red Sox pitcher, was near death in a Century, Ala., hospital today, suffering from knife wounds.

Early today doctors announced he had only a slight chance of recovering.

Morris attended a fish fry in his honor here Monday night, and according to friends, suffered the wounds in a fight with Joe White. While the two were wrestling on the ground, witnesses said, White stabbed Morris twice, the knife blade barely missing the pitcher's heart.

White was seized by police and is being held without charges.

Morris was to have left today for Savannah, Ga., to join the Boston training camp.

LINDBERGHS THINK PROFESSIONALS TO BLAME IN KIDNAPING

Reactions Of Famed Couple Described By Policeman

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh believe that a gang of professional kidnapers stole their 20-month-old son from his nursery crib.

Deputy Police Chief Charles E. Williamson, of Hopewell, one of the first officers to reach the Lindbergh home after the kidnaping today told of how the noted parents of the missing child felt and acted.

"Chief Harry Wolf and myself arrived at the house," said Williamson, "Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh and several others met us at the door. They ushered us into the living room where the colonel told us what had happened."

"Both were standing up well under the circumstances and while we questioned them for a few minutes they sat in chairs, close to each other."

"Colonel Lindbergh was the calmer of the two, although Mrs. Lindbergh did not cry. She cried after we left, I was told."

"Colonel Lindbergh took us out in the yard and we found the ladder about fifty feet from the house. Both Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh accompanied us up to the nursery room."

"Colonel Lindbergh told me that he knew as soon as the report came to him that the baby was gone that he had been kidnaped. I asked the colonel if he had heard any unusual noise. He replied that he had not heard any noise except the wind blowing around the house."

"While we were outside we followed footprints for a distance and decided that the kidnapers' car must have been parked on featherbed Lane (the road leading to the Lindbergh estate)."

"There were auto tracks on this road past the old bridge, on the dead end of the road. The footprints lead across the field."

"Colonel Lindbergh said he could see no reason why anyone should want to kidnap his baby."

"I pointed out to Mrs. Lindbergh that there were no clothes gone from the bed. Mrs. Lindbergh then said: 'The poor child has had a cold and will suffer. We have been doctoring the baby for several days.'"

"I asked Colonel Lindbergh if he suspected anyone. He replied: 'No.'"

"Colonel Lindbergh said the nurse last saw the child between 7:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. As we stood in the room he pointed to the unlocked window and said: 'They must have gotten in through that window.'"

"Mrs. Lindbergh, during our questioning, interrupted and asked the colonel: 'Don't you think we should notify our mothers immediately?' Mrs. Lindbergh then took the phone and called her mother at Englewood, and a few minutes later placed a long distance telephone call to Detroit, and talked to Colonel Lindbergh's mother."

"I stepped out of the room while she was calling, but I did hear her say when she reached her mother: 'Our baby has been kidnaped.'"

"I told them that from the preparations made, the kidnapers must have been professionals, determined to get the child at any cost."

"Yes," Mrs. Lindbergh replied, "and it probably would have happened even if we were at mother's."

"The colonel then asked if he ought to look around some more at the footprints in the mud or should we wait for the state troopers."

"I replied 'I guess we'd better wait for the troopers.' The butler had been at the phone several times talking to the state police whom he called after talking with me at 10:20 p. m."

"Corporal Wolf of Lamberville then arrived, closely followed by Major Charles A. Schoeffel. The scene was then re-enacted. More troopers continued to arrive and a quick search was made of the grounds."

"I noticed that Mrs. Lindbergh was very calm at first but she seemed to be showing the strain with all the excitement. I suggested that she take something for her nerves. She said she was all right and that she would wait until later."

REPORT CHILD STOLEN IS ILL

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The kidnaped baby of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was suffering from a severe cold.

Added to the anguish of a mother whose only child had been stolen was the worry of Mrs. Lindbergh over the natural health of her son.

"The poor child has had a cold and will suffer," said Mrs. Lindbergh. "We have been doctoring the baby for several days."

(BULLETIN)

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, famous parents of kidnaped "Lindy, Junior," are willing to pay the $50,000 ransom demanded by those who stole their son.

The willingness of the Lindberghs to pay the sum demanded as well as the fact that a ransom note was actually left in the nursery crib by the kidnapers was disclosed for the first time today by a close friend of the Lindberghs.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The kidnapers of "Lindy, Junior," left a calling card—a ransom note—in the nursery before they stole away through the night with the 20-month-old son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

While the exact contents of the note left behind was undisclosed, a state trooper today admitted there was such a note in existence.

The greatest secrecy surrounded the note and conjecture as to the amount asked by the baby-stealers ranged from $50,000 to sums running into six and seven figures.

As every available policeman and detective in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware sought a

BELIEVED NON-PROFESSIONALS

CHICAGO, March 2.—Kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., are non-professionals of low mentality, in the opinion of Lieut. Albert Hoffman of the Chicago Detective Bureau, expert in abduction cases.

"No organized gang of experienced kidnapers would select Col. Lindbergh's child as their victim," Lieut. Hoffman said today. "Veterans would understand the high esteem in which he is held. They would know the intense 'heat' would spoil their chances."

trace of the missing million-dollar baby, a promising clue was reported from Philadelphia.

Authorities of the Quaker City reported that a mysterious taxicab was seen at dawn with a heavy set man and a woman clasping a child within the machine.

Police Sergeant Charles Patterson saw the taxicab.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 2.—The detective genius of four states combed roadway and alley today for Baby Lindbergh, 20-month-old heir to the fame and fortune of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib as he slept and his parents and authorities were convinced the job was accomplished by a professional kidnaping gang.

A night and part of a day have passed and only a few slim clues as to the kidnapers have developed. The entire force of the New Jersey state police concentrated in the area surrounding the Lindbergh isolated country home in the belief that the kidnapers were hiding the baby somewhere in the surrounding dense woods.

Careful search was made of each of the numerous deserted farmhouses in the region.

The famous father of the missing baby aided the troopers in their search. Colonel Lindbergh looked haggard and sleepless from his all night vigil—far different from the spic-and-span "Lindy" of other days.

"I intend to remain awake until my baby returns home," Colonel Lindbergh said when a friend suggested he get some sleep.

"My wife, Anne, is in bed. I guess the strain was too much for her."

PHYSICIAN CALLED

The Lindbergh family physician was summoned to look after Mrs. Lindbergh.

"We have received several leads, but most of them have fallen down," said Colonel Lindbergh.

"The police have leads now in

"CURLY-HAIRED"

HOPEWELL, N. J., Mar. 2.—Curly-haired, blue-eyed, and chubby perhaps best describes the appearance of the sturdy 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., kidnapers' victim.

The world-famous infant is described by those who saw him as the miniature image of his world-famous flying father, Colonel Lindbergh.

A friend of Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who observed the baby in the kindergarten of his aunt, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, said of him today:

"The baby is just learning to talk. What does he say? Oh, mostly the words that all babies learn to say first."

"He is an unusually sturdy youngster, and seemed exceptionally bright and alert. He is well into the toddling stage, and as tall as the average baby of his age."

"His complexion is fair. And he looks so much like his father."

Atlantic City, and Yarbley, Pa. I don't now how important they are but we are clenching at every straw.

Another tip sent the Colonel speeding away to Flagtown, N. J., fifteen miles distance.

He was accompanied by two state troopers and Oscar Busch, well-known trapper in the region.

FOOTPRINTS FOUND

The footprints indicated that the man and the woman removed their shoes or else used wrapping about their footwear.

The blanket may have been one used by the kidnapers to wrap the baby. None of his own bed clothing was taken by the gang.

The abandoned sedan answered the description of a machine in which a man and woman were reported inquiring as to the way to the Lindbergh estate shortly before the kidnaping last night.

Whether or not the kidnapers

Where Death Has Swung His Scythe

This picture, from the Chinese war zone, vividly illustrates the horror of war in terrible detail. A street in Chapei is shown after a Japanese bombardment. Buildings that once were classics of Old World beauty reduced to hollow shells by aerial bombs and fire; homes where once resounded happy laughter are now the tombs of their occupants. Streets littered with corpses, women and children indiscriminately mowed down as well as combatants. Where is the glamor, the romance, the glory that we once believed went hand in hand with war?

Flying Cops—East and West

There's a big difference in bulk in the fliers shown here, but although Patricia Mendell (right) weighs but 106 pounds, she holds the job of flying traffic cop at San Francisco, Cal. Miss Mendell, America's first aerial policewoman, succeeded the late Captain D. C. Warren, of San Francisco, who was killed when he crashed into a mountainside near Portland, Ore. Left is Patrolman Daniel Eldridge, who directs traffic on the East Coast air lanes. He is stationed at the East Boston Airport.

Stork Beneficiary

The arrival of an 8-pound baby girl to Mrs. Bud Stillman, the former Lena Wilson, who became the bride of the heir to Banker James A. Stillman's millions, just about fills the cup of happiness of the young couple. The babe was born in a Boston hospital. The young papa and the millionaire granddad were there to welcome the new member of the clan.

$120,000 Shortage

George A. Beauchamp, former secretary of Alabama's Grand Lodge of Masons, has been indicted on four counts of embezzlement at Montgomery. Charged with a shortage of more than $120,000, Beauchamp will go to trial in May.

Sought for Larceny

Missing from her home in Swampscott, Mass., Angelina Marstromino, 18-year-old beauty, is being sought by police on a warrant charging larceny. The girl's parents, who received a letter from the missing girl which was mailed in New York, allege that she helped herself to $3,000 of the family funds before she vanished.

Star Gazing

Tallulah Bankhead

Alabama girl who became a star on the London stage, then came to Long Island studios to make several pictures, is making her first picture in Hollywood. Its tentative title is "Thunder Below".

EDITOR AND SCREEN STAR BRIDE

The cameraman drops in on Bolton Mallory, editor of Life, and his bride at Palm Beach, Fla., where they have been honeymooning. She is Nancy Carroll of screen fame, no less.

Famous Turf Star As Cowboy

All dressed up in ten-gallon hat, neckerchief and chaps, apparently designed for a cowboy bridge enthusiast, Steve Donaghue (right), famous English jockey, is shown with Earl Coffman as they took an early morning canter at Palm Springs, Cal., where he is among the noted desert oasis visitors. The Prince of Wales, who is an intimate friend of Donaghue's, would scarcely recognize him in this outfit, particularly as the little jockey is regarded as one of the best-dressed turfmen in England.

On Both Sides of the Shanghai Front

Here are two pictures from the scene of the Sino-Japanese conflict in Shanghai. Upper photo, made on the Chinese side of the fence, shows Chinese soldiers in the Chapei area rebuilding their barricade after it had been blown down by one of the Japs' frequent bombardments. This barricade is erected in front of the Commercial Press Building at Chapei, which has been a conspicuous target for the Jap gunners in that sector. Note the lone obsolete trench mortar with which this post is armed. In the lower photo the camera takes us to the other side of No-Man's-Land and shows a Japanese tank, manned by the stocky Nipponese warriors. Note the efficient armored car in front of the breastworks.

Honeymooners

Snapped at Miami Beach, Fla., where they are spending their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sande attracted considerable attention during their visit to the racetrack. Earl is one of the country's greatest riders and his bride is the former Mrs. Clarence Kummer, widow of the noted jockey. They were married in New York recently.

Doesn't Like New Justice

Charging that he "contributed to an infamy of injustice perpetrated through Tammany control and prostitution of the courts," William H. Anderson (right) has opposed the appointment of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo to the seat on the U. S. Supreme Court Bench recently vacated by the retirement of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Anderson, former head of the New York Anti-Saloon League before he was convicted of forgery and sent to prison, is shown with Senator Robinson of Indiana when he appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee to register his protest.

New Recruit for "Kunnels"

It's Colonel Jack Dempsey now, for the ex-champion has joined the growing ranks of that honored organization of Kentucky Colonels. The title was bestowed on Jack by Governor Ribby Laffoon (left) when Dempsey visited the Kentucky executive in Louisville recently. Wonder if "Major" Tunney will have to salute his ranking officer?

Drowned Mother and Children

A few hours after they had started out on a picnic the bodies of Mrs. Sanford Cresci, of Bridgeton, N. J., and her three children were taken from the icy waters of Sunset Lake in the Tumbling Dam Park. No one will ever know the circumstances surrounding the tragedy, but police believe that the mother drowned the children and then herself. The husband could give no reason why she should do so, other than that she had gone temporarily insane. Photo shows the children, Lee, 8; Mary, 6, and Sanford, Jr., 4. Inset is Mrs. Cresci.

En route to Havana, Cuba, the first stop on their projected trip through tropical South America, Mr. and Mrs. David Hutton, of Los Angeles, are shown as they took a cooling dip in the swimming pool aboard the S. PAPES' DIAPEPSIN

STUDENTS TO PRESENT COMIC OPERA

JANET EDGE

DOROTHY EATON

"Patience," a comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be the offering of the combined musical and dramatic organizations of Antioch College at the Yellow Springs Opera House Thursday and Friday evenings.

Not since "Yeomen of the Guard" was produced three years ago has an Antioch organization attempted the task of giving a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. In "Patience" it is said that Gilbert brings forward all the wit at his command while Sullivan produces the necessary military matter. The operetta was received by English theatergoers of 1881 with sufficient acclaim to call for more than 550 consecutive performances.

Miss Janet Edge, Westfield, N. J., has been cast in the title role as "Patience" while Miss Dorothy Eaton, Bryan, O., will play the part of "Lady Jane." The cast has been working on the production since November and has made rapid progress under the supervision of Mr. Mason, Miss Oldt and Mr. Pillard. Elaborate settings and colorful costumes will be used and will add to the effectiveness of the opera.

Tickets are on sale at Miss Frances Shaw's department store in Yellow Springs.

Osborn - Fairfield

Mrs. Elsie Barran—Correspondent Phone No. 192

Rev. and Mrs. M. J. Eckert entertained at 6 o'clock dinner Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Barley of Xenia, Mr. Edwin Collins of Springfield and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Wright of Centerville.

The Young Peoples' Class of the Reformed Church, Fairfield, were guests of the Young Peoples' Class of the Monument Ave. Baptist Church, Dayton, Sunday evening. About twenty were present.

Tuesday afternoon, the Home Economics Class of Bath High had a visit of the demonstrator for a cooking oil to demonstrate the difference between menus and salads that can be made with this. Recipes were given those present. It was held at the school cafeteria and quite a large number of Osborn and Fairfield interested mothers were present.

The Rotary Club met for its regular noon luncheon at the American Legion Hall on Main St., Fairfield. Rev. J. Otis Young, president, presided.

Jack Dempsey, the famous champ would be very interested were he to know that while he was at the Miami Hotel, Monday, several local residents had the pleasure of "just one glimpse of him in person," so if you folks who are ardent admirers of this particular gentleman, should like any information about him, Miss Wright, Mrs. Claire Day and Mrs. M. J. Eckert, who were guests of the Miami, should enlighten your curiosity to some extent.

Mr. George Alexander of Springfield is the guest for the week of Mr. Charles Alexander and niece, Fannie Morgan of the Springfield Pike.

Miss Mary Cathryn Gheen was the Sunday visitor of Miss Ida Marguerite Strome of the Springfield Pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Krug and baby daughter, were the guests of Mr. Krug's parents in Vandalia, Sunday.

The pageant given by Girls' Class at M. E. Church Sunday was well attended and the play supervised by Mrs. Hall was without a doubt a success. There was something about this play which touched the hearts of many mothers and dads present as their children portrayed their particular parts so religiously. Mrs. Hall certainly deserves a lot of credit for her interest in this play.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Strome were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor Tuesday.

TAX SETTLEMENT TO SCHOOLS
DELAYED; CASH IN CLOSED BANK

Distribution of $191,986.25 to school districts of Xenia and Greene County, this sum representing money due the districts for the February tax settlement, has been delayed, owing to the closing of the Commercial and Savings Bank Co. here, Monday.

The closed bank was one of four active depositories for county public funds and $64,000, it became known Tuesday, is temporarily tied up in the institution. The funds are covered by ample security, but are not immediately available.

The distribution of tax money to the school districts was ordered held up by F. P. Householder, state examiner, who has been engaged in making the regular audit of books of county officials.

Checks for the February settlement, mailed out from the county auditor's office last Friday to all other taxing districts, including Xenia city, villages and townships.

These checks are drawn on the county treasurer, but checks to school districts must be made out in the name of a bank acting as an active county depository.

None of the school districts, with the lone exception of Xenia Twp. schools, received its check Saturday because the auditor must first have a statement of the condition of the bank in each district before a settlement can be made.

LOFTY STEEPLE OF
ST BRIGID CHURCH IS BEING REMOVED

The task of tearing down the towering spire on St. Brigid's Catholic Church at Second and West Sts., regarded as one of the loftiest steeples in this locality, was begun Wednesday by McCarran Bros., local contractors.

The church was built in 1852. Because of temporary suspension of building activities in the archdiocese, plans to construct a new church to replace the eighty-year-old edifice, have been halted.

Announcement of the decision to remove the steeple was made to the congregation at Sunday services by the Rev. Lawrence Wessel, pastor. The step was decided upon because of possible danger of the spire being blown down during a storm, although an inspection had indicated it is safe.

Contractors said they expected to remove about 100 feet of the steeple, down to the belfry, constructing a roof as a protection over the belfry. The gold cross topping the spire is about 150 feet from the ground.

STUDENTS TO PRESENT COMIC OPERA

DOROTHY EATON

"Patience," a comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be the offering of the combined musical and dramatic organizations of Antioch College at the Yellow Springs Opera House Thursday and Friday evenings.

Not since "Yeomen of the Guard" was produced three years ago has an Antioch organization attempted the task of giving a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. In "Patience" it is said that Gilbert brings forward all the wit at his command while Sullivan produces the necessary military patter. The opera was received by English theatergoers of 1881 with sufficient acclaim to call for more than 550 consecutive performances.

Miss Janet Edge, Westfield, N. J., has been cast in the title role as "Patience" while Miss Dorothy Eaton, Bryan, O., will play the part of "Lady Jane." The cast has been working on the production since November and has made rapid progress under the supervision of Mr. Mason, Miss Oldt and Mr. Pillard. Elaborate settings and colorful costumes will be used and will add to the effectiveness of the opera.

Tickets are on sale at Miss Frances Shaw's department store in Yellow Springs.

TAX SETTLEMENT TO SCHOOLS
DELAYED; CASH IN CLOSED BANK

Distribution of $191,986.25 to school districts of Xenia and Greene County, this sum representing money due the districts for the February tax settlement, has been delayed, owing to the closing of the Commercial and Savings Bank Co. here, Monday.

The closed bank was one of four active depositories for county public funds and $64,000, it became known Tuesday, is temporarily tied up in the institution. The funds are covered by ample security, but are not immediately available.

The distribution of tax money to the school districts was ordered held up by F. P. Householder, state examiner, who has been engaged in making the regular audit of books of county offices.

Checks for the February settlement were mailed out from the county auditor's office last Friday to all other taxing districts, including Xenia city, villages and townships.

These checks are drawn on the county treasurer, but checks to school districts must be made out in the name of a bank acting as an active county depository.

None of the school districts, with the lone exception of Xenia Twp. schools, received its check Saturday because the auditor must first have a statement of the condition of funds in each district before a settlement can be made.

Xenia Twp. school district was the only district which had time to comply with this provision of the law. A check for $9,633.40, representing its share of the settlement, was received by the district Saturday and was deposited at once in the Commercial Bank on the last day the institution was open.

Other school districts will be required to struggle along for the time being without their February settlement money. These districts, and the amounts they were to receive after deducting any advance draws, are: Bath Twp., $38,504.21; Beavercreek, $18,689.29; Caesar Creek, $3,287.62; Cedarville, $9,913.47; Jefferson, $11,124.61; Miami Yellow Springs, $8,658.58; Clifton village (Greene County portion), $2,044.63; Ross, $9,844.30; Silver Creek, $7,121.86; Springfield Valley, $9,460.11; Sugar Creek, $9,304.67; Xenia city, $57,738.68.

In the existing emergency, county officials say that only one step may be taken to assist the school districts financially during the period they will be embarrassed temporarily for their tax funds.

After the other taxing districts have cashed their checks, the remaining amount of money in the undivided general tax fund will probably be pro-rated among the school districts. It will be a week or ten days before this division of money can be accomplished.

The entire amount of the February tax settlement was $379,325.46. Deducting state and county shares, the townships received $28,795.14, the villages and Xenia city obtained $35,138.03, not including specials, and the school districts were scheduled to receive $201,619.65.

Settlements to the townships, Xenia city and villages in full were made as follows: townships—Bath, $1,988.01; Beavercreek, $3,345.38; Caesar Creek, $919.56; Cedarville, $2,220.43; Jefferson, $1,230.54; Miami, $2,156.84; New Jasper, $1,363.31; Ross, $2,004.63; Silver Creek, $1,625.71; Springfield Valley, $1,771.53; Sugar Creek, $1,371.78; Xenia, $4,332.75. Villages—Fairfield, $3,227.19; Osborn, $5,334.48; Cedarville, $6,512.72; Beavercreek, $240.71; Clifton, $76.97; Yellow Springs, $3,342.83; Jamestown, $2,647.05; Springfield Valley, $685.12; Bellbrook, $265.62 and Xenia city, $25,122.40.

Announcement of the decision to remove the steeple was made to the congregation at Sunday services by the Rev. Lawrence Wessel, pastor. The step was decided upon because of possible danger of the spire being blown down during a storm, although an inspection had indicated it is safe.

Contractors said they expected to remove about 100 feet of the steeple, down to the belfry, constructing a roof as a protection over the belfry. The gold cross topping the spire is about 150 feet from the ground.

Don't harm yourself by an abnormal diet. Doctors do not advise that now. Science has found that a lacking gland secretion is a great cause of excess fat. So doctors, the world over, now feed that lacking factor. And excess fat, under this right treatment, has been disappearing fast.

Marmola prescription tablets present that treatment ready-made. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Now in every circle you can see the delightful results of Marmola. Go do what the wise are doing. Use the right method to reduce. Ask your druggist for Marmola. Read the book in the box to learn what to expect, and why. Do this now. It is folly to stay fat.

CHEMISTRY IN FARMING

Many constructive ideas about the contributions that chemistry may make in developing new markets for farm products were presented at a recent meeting of chemical engineers in New York City. The farms of America are a self-replenishing storehouse of sugars and starches and cellulose—complex organic materials that lend themselves to an inexhaustible variety of chemical manipulation. The amazing variety of products that are made from coal and oil with the aid of industrial chemistry give a hint of the possibilities that await the chemist who undertakes a study of the utilization of farm products.

Depreciated and devalued currencies, high tariff barriers, efforts of nations to restrict imports in order to improve their international financial status, have combined to restrict the foreign outlet for many nations' farm products to the point where surplus production bids fair to become chronic, and the prospect for any early change in that condition is not bright.

That leaves the farmer with two alternatives. Years of low prices may force him, through organization and perhaps with the aid of legislation, to reduce his production to the needs of the domestic market. Or with the aid of the chemists he may find an outlet for his surplus products for other purposes than as food and clothing.

The first alternative would work to the disadvantage of consumers. If the farmer plans to avoid a surplus in years of favorable weather, he will not produce enough in years when weather is not so kind. In an industry like agriculture, where weather is so large a factor, a close balance between production and consumers' requirements is impossible.

General welfare demands a surplus of food and clothing. The welfare of the farmer demands a market that will give him enough above cost of production to allow him to maintain a reasonable standard of living. How can these demands be reconciled?

A promising answer may be furnished by the chemists. With their help it may be possible to safeguard the welfare of the consumer with an annual production of food and cotton and wool that will always be in excess of the need for food and clothing, and at the same time safeguard the farmer's welfare by providing industrial outlets that will absorb the surplus.

The development of such products as cellophane and lacquer, which even now provide an appreciable market for cotton and for solvents made from grain, gives a hint of the possibilities of chemistry as a means of farm relief. Here is a field of research that should be investigated diligently, both by industry and by public research institutions.

THEY'RE STILL HERE

Young medics, convinced that this is an age of specialization and accordingly inclined to look down their noses at doctors engaged in general practice might heed the recent statement of the president of an American medical association to the effect that the general practitioner is the foundation of modern medical practice.

The village doctor and the village pastor or priest long have watched over the bodies and souls of those in their communities. Sometimes the doctor has administered spiritual comfort, though not always in strictly theological terms. Sometimes the pastor or priest has given simple remedies for bodily ills, though not always in accord with materia medica. If either man has stood above the other in the regard of his fellows, this was usually due to greater individuality alone.

Family doctors exist in large cities. But those of us who have lived in small towns know that there the family doctor is indeed a "character," a shepherd, a rock, a very present help in time of trouble.

The generation of family doctors may be passing.

In many ways, for many reasons, the scope of the general practitioner is necessarily limited. But the village doctor has by no means disappeared from the scene. Plenty of smart young men just out of medical school have looked over the field and have chosen to step into the places of the older men. There is still a charm in village life, with much that may be said in its favor. While the doctor who goes to a small community may give up some opportunities for research and fame, he stands to learn more of human nature, and will live a life rich in genuine contribution to the well-being of his neighbors.

STAY ON WAGON

When next bitten by a rattlesnake don't fall off the water-wagon. Seek out another rattler and coax it to bite you. When you have induced ten or a dozen of these reptilian friends to perform this natural operation you will discover that they have set up a toxic immunity that will permit you to make rattlesnakes your pets and to laugh at their poison.

At least that is a reasonable deduction from discoveries made by experiments of the Georgetown Medical School and the Mayo Clinic. Whiskey is the first possible remedy or antidote for rattlesnake bite, according to these authorities. The rattler's venom acts directly on the blood and its vessels. The problem is to keep it as far as possible out of the blood stream. Alcohol speeds up circulation and carries the poison more quickly through the system. There goes another popular, very popular, medical superstition.

The researches carried out at Georgetown and Rochester tend to show that rattlesnake toxin sets up its own immunity on repeated injection. The probability is deduced therefrom that each rattler's bite would be less serious than the preceding one. That is a cheerful thought for those who dwell in the snake country. Another popular illusion destroyed by the experimenters is that rattlesnake bite is always fatal or nearly always. Only 10 per cent of the rattler's victims die, as against 80 per cent of the cobra's victims. Obviously the rattler has been painted blacker than Nature made it. Woo it, set up your own immunity and you will not have to violate the Volstead Act to save yourself from its caresses.

TAX ABANDONED

Majority Leader Rainey in the House at Washington is reported to have confirmed rumors that the Administration's proposal to revive the 1924 excise tax on automobiles has been definitely abandoned in his branch of Congress. That is good news for the Country generally. The automobile industry already is carrying its share of taxation. Adding to this load, at a time when a key industry is struggling to get back to normal conditions and thus aid other industries to do the same thing, would probably have cost the Country far more than the $40,000,000 which the Administration expected to receive from a two per cent sales tax. The Democratic majority in the House is to be congratulated on the defeat of the automobile tax proposal to the extent to which it is responsible for this wise decision.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK. — These puzzles! First I go nearly cuckoo trying to dope out that one about the monkey and his mother. Then, when I was indiscreet enough to print the darn thing, I'm avalanched with letters accusing me of various heinous crimes, most of them insisting that there could be no adequate solution or else offering cocky solutions, all of them wrong. (All that is, except three.)

I am a weak character. The sensible thing to do now, that most of the letters are efficiently answered, is to forget about the whole matter. I can't do it. This afternoon a diabolic acquaintance — who has undoubtedly spent the past week concocting the thing, just to annoy me—breaks out with a twister that would be absolutely lonesome out of print.

So here goes. Although I hate the word, there is only one way to characterize the proposition which follows. It's cute. Throw the grapefruit, but it's still cute.

The Problem

Four experts were playing contract bridge in the living room of an attractive suburban home. Their names were Mr. Wilson, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Stout and Mr. Brown. The cards had been dealt and the bidding started when a maid entered the room.

None of the players paid any attention to her. Mr. Wilson bid one spade.

"Beg pardon, sir," the maid said. "The doctor said to tell you it's a boy." Then she withdrew from the room.

The bidding continued without interruption, but with the following unusual result:

Mr. Phillips, North, doubled the one spade bid informally.

Mr. Stout, East, redoubled.

Mr. Brown, South, bid one no trump.

Mr. Wilson, West, passed.

Mr. Phillips bid three no trumps and took the contract.

Who is the baby's father?

When Any Man's Sick He Wants Sympathy And Rarely Deserves It

When a man's under the weather, of course he doesn't want to be treated like a baby.

But he WOULD like a little Human Sympathy.

Naturally he doesn't want the entire house turned upside down just because he's suffering a little and has had to go to the doctor.

No, he doesn't want that. He doesn't want pity. He doesn't want too much fuss made over him.

last year. He should have taken care of himself.

And why didn't he? There seems to be a general opinion throughout the house that he isn't as sick as he thinks he is.

Well, a man ought to know how sick he is! If anybody does, HE certainly should. . . and he ought to have a little attention. Of course, he doesn't want people running around like chickens with their heads off. That would be too much to expect. . . But they might realize that father isn't well.

Instead, people seem to think it's a joke. Perhaps not a joke, exactly, but nothing to be taken very seriously. He's got a bad cold or a headache, or something like that, and he'll be back on the job in a few days — and if he's babied he'll begin to think something serious is wrong with him.

Yes, that's the way the family treats father and he sort of resents it. Of course, he can't show his resentment. That wouldn't do at all. It would make him ridiculous.

But he could stand a little less of sensible advice and a little more Human Sympathy. . . Honestly, he could.

But deep down underneath he KNOWS that he's neglected himself and acted as if he were immortal and deserves everything that's coming to him. . . But he'll not be admitting that.)

Cost of government, no matter how great or how small, is spread over the cost of everything that the whole public consumes. No one who pays any taxes at all escapes. No one who buys anything escapes; the cost of government, local, state and national, permeates through everything that has to do with the lives of people or with the conduct of business large and small. No one escapes.

Good honest efficient administration of community business and of state and national affairs is the greatest blessing that can come to a free people.

Dishonest and inefficient government retards and disintegrates every constructive effort made by the institutions and the individuals who are always working for the upbuilding of life and of living standards.

Every city in the great state of Ohio can well take a leaf from the book of the municipal life of the city of Cincinnati.

Under their commission form of government able honest and patriotic men are drafted from the best life of the city to serve on their board of administration. An able and experienced business man is employed as manager and now, in place of the deplorable conditions which formerly existed throughout that fair city, Cincinnati is today an orderly and well-managed community, free from graft and lawlessness.

It has good streets, splendid community playgrounds, many well equipped hospitals, both private and municipal, many beautiful parks and a fine municipal airport. Cincinnati is a great cultural center of art, music and education. The Cincinnati University stands among the best in the nation. All this is obtained with a decreasing bonded indebtedness and a decreased tax rate.

Judge Seabury came to Cincinnati in honor of its municipal accomplishments.

More power to Cincinnati and its Charter Association.

Headache Remedies Suggested

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Patients who are subject to sick headache can be assured that they will get over it. The average age at which the attack begins is about 14 years; and they continue until the end of middle age—the change of life in women and the similar, but less revolutionary changes in men. In only 10 per cent of cases do the attacks persist after this age period.

Treatment may be directed towards two objects — one to stop or relieve an attack which threatens or has actually begun, and the other treatment directed towards preventing the attack altogether.

Most people who have migraine have learned their own way to treat the individual attacks. Some find if they can get their bowels open before the attack has gained headway it can be aborted or mitigated.

This is perhaps partly associated with the phenomena we described yesterday—the apparent stoppage of movement in the intestines during the attack. A more pretentious way of doing this is by flushing out the upper part of the intestines with a saline laxative by means of duodenal tube.

Along the same lines is the idea many of these patients have that if they can get some aspirin or phenacetin or acetanilid into the stomach and absorbed it will help. What this means is that they must get the aspirin or other remedy absorbed before the digestive tract entirely ceases to function. After the attack is on and the nausea and feeling of numbness in the abdomen are established, it means that drugs by mouth are practically inert because the stomach and intestines are paralyzed.

"Migraine tablets" or migraine remedies in most instances are made up of aspirin, phenacetin, caffeine, acetanilid and antipyrine, either alone or in combination. They are of proved value (in spite of the difficulty mentioned above, of slow absorption) in mitigating the worst pangs of the attack, as most sufferers have discovered. Coffee alone is a splendid headache remedy; the reason for its action we saw explained last summer.

The other object of treatment is to attempt to change the migraine patient's physiology or body chemistry so there will never be another attack. Or so that the number, frequency and severity of the attacks will be lessened.

The number of methods that have been employed for this is legion. And their variety testified to the dubiousness of success of the undertaking. If there were any one sure way to terminate migraine we would all know about it.

The difficulties are almost hopelessly complicated. The disease is ingrained in every fiber of the patient's body.

My own advice to migraine patients would be not to try any treatment which is dangerous, complicated, expensive, or troublesome.

The best treatment yet proposed, in my opinion, is by the injection of foreign proteins. Peptone given in the vein has been the most successful of any. By this method 36 per cent of patients are free from attacks for several months, and 48 per cent have a diminution in the number or severity of their attacks. The rest are not benefited.

Choose Mate Carefully

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS VIRGINIA LEE: I am a widow with a little girl 11 years old. My husband died four years ago. I'd be glad to have your reactions as to what would be advisable for me to do."

Should a person in my position (32 years of age), with no relatives to make a home with seek a companion for myself and provide a father for my little girl, or is it quite a risk to find someone who would be unselfish enough to care a great deal for the little girl, even if he cared for me? I am not financially well fixed. Earn my own living.

"Is it taking a big risk to marry the second time? Should I wait until the child is self-supporting and less likely to be a financial burden on a man?"

"A. B. C."

Of course a woman who has a child and makes a second marriage does rather take more risk than when she marries the first time. There is no doubt about that. Children can make a lot of trouble and a man who is not used to them may tire of one and also may not realize its needs.

On the other hand, many men would enjoy the child, especially a girl, and be as good to her as the child's own father.

I don't believe in anyone living alone if she meets a suitable mate. "It is not good for man to live alone," says the Good Book, and that goes for woman, too. I take it. Use your very best judgment in the matter of course. Make as sure as you can that any man you would consider marrying would be liked by the little girl, and would like her and be kind to her. That is the best you can do.

"DEAR MISS LEE: What is your opinion of a girl who will go with a fellow for four years and after a lover's quarrel will have him arrested for slapping her?"

"She claims she had to do it for fear of her father. At the trial she said nothing at all, either to hurt or to help, but her people did their worst."

The real trouble is that I love her still and she tells others that she loves me. But she never tries to talk to me, for we see each other every day. Do you think she is worth caring for, or should I try to forget her?

"R. I. N. Y."

Probably the arrest was none of her doing, and perhaps you showed an uncontrollable temper by slapping her, didn't you? If you still love each other I think you had better call it quits and marry if you can go away where her people won't be able to make trouble. If not, better forget her.

LOVESICK, BROKEN HEARTED AND WORRIED all love certain boys and all the boys are inclined to seek other charms. What shall the girls do to win their love?

You can't keep boys interested by displaying jealousy and trying to keep them from going with other girls, if they are so inclined. That is infringing on their liberty, and you have no right to do that unless you are engaged. Boys always resent that attitude.

Leave them free to go with whom they please and reserve the same privilege for yourselves.

DIXIE: Ask one of your good boys pals to go to the party with you, Dixie, and have a good time.

Cold Water Good Tonic

By GLADYS GLAD

It certainly is discouraging, when you're stepping out with the best boy friend, and trying to impress him with your charms, to find that, before the evening's activities are half over, you've lost your appearance and have begun to look tired and wilted. Yet this often occurs to girls whose evenings are all party evenings, who go the pace all the time. And it also happens to the poor little wall flowers who are so accustomed to retiring early that they can hardly keep their eyes open after their usual bedtime hour has passed.

What most girls do in a case like this is to step into the ladies' room, whip out the old vanity case, and dab some powder and rouge onto their faces. And usually that doesn't improve their appearance much.

It doesn't make them feel any brighter or fresher. It isn't any too good for the healthiness of their skins. And often it merely makes their make-up appear blotchy and artificial.

If you're going out for an evening of pleasure, it's my advice that you slip one of those tiny tubes of cleansing cream into your purse along with your usual powder, rouge and lipstick. Fold a square of cleansing tissue into a small wad, and include that, too, if you can. And when you begin looking droopy and worn during the evening you can make a thorough job of that rebeautifying.

Remove every bit of your old make-up with the cleansing cream, then. Wipe off all the grease and grime thoroughly with the bit of tissue. This alone will take some of the tiredness out of you. Then dash plenty of clear, cold water over your face. The cold water will tone up your skin beautifully. It will refresh you, wake you up. And you'll feel and look as bright as a new penny. After drying your face, apply fresh make-up in your usual manner. And the boy friend will probably be so impressed by your freshness and vivacity that he'll fall, as the saying goes, "like a ton of bricks."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Shampooing

G. J.: You should never rub a cake of soap directly on your hair. Use a liquid soap, or at least first melt the cake of soap before you use it.

Manicure

Tiny: If you can follow instructions, you can give yourself a beautiful manicure at home. The full instructions are contained in my article on "Care of the Hands and Nails."

Colors

Blonde: I think that shades of tan, brown, blue, gray, dark red, dark green and black would prove most becoming to you.

Cod Liver Oil

Kitty: Cod liver oil is very rich in vitamins, and is excellent for building up the body. It should be taken after meals, for the best results.

NEW YORK. — These puzzles! First I go nearly cuckoo trying to dope out that one about the monkey and his mother. Then, when I was indiscreet enough to print the darn thing, I'm avalanched with letters accusing me of various heinous crimes, most of them insisting that there could be no adequate solution or else offering cocky solutions, all of them wrong. (All that is, except three.)

I am a weak character. The sensible thing to do now, that most of the letters are efficiently answered, is to forget about the whole matter. I can't do it. This afternoon a diabolic acquaintance — who has undoubtedly spent the past week concocting the thing, just to annoy me—breaks out with a twister that would be absolutely lonesome out of print.

So here goes. Although I hate the word, there is only one way to characterize the proposition which follows. It's cute. Throw the grapefruit, but it's still cute.

The Problem

Four experts were playing contract bridge in the living room of an attractive suburban home. Their names were Mr. Wilson, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Stout and Mr. Brown. The cards had been dealt and the bidding started when a maid entered the room.

None of the players paid any attention to her. Mr. Wilson bid one spade.

"Beg pardon, sir," the maid said. "The doctor said to tell you it's a boy." Then she withdrew from the room.

The bidding continued without interruption, but with the following unusual result:

Mr. Phillips, North, doubled the one spade bid informatively. Mr. Stout, East, redoubled.

Mr. Brown, South, bid one no trump.

Mr. Wilson, West, passed.

Mr. Phillips bid three no trumps and took the contract.

Who is the baby's father?

For a stamped, self-addressed envelope I'll give him away.

Note And Comment

In this column will appear from day to day articles written by various individuals not on the staff or associated with this paper. These articles will be constructive in nature and presented with the hope that they may give our readers a broader understanding on matters of local, state, national and international interest. As these articles will not originate with us they will be submitted without our assuming any responsibility for the information given or for the opinions expressed. GOOD GOVERNMENT

The recent visit of Judge Seabury of New York to Cincinnati in attendance at the Victory Dinner of the City Charter Association brought out in bold relief the conditions which prevail in one of our largest and worst managed cities in the nation, as against those known to exist in a neighboring city.

Cincinnati is conceded to have one of the best, one of the cleanest administrations in all the country.

Judge Seabury's bold denunciation of the colossal system of graft which has fastened itself on the people of New York was astounding. That such a system can be so boldly maintained and defended against all attack, and can be so impervious to all criticism, seems incredible.

It is charged that somewhat similar conditions exist in many of our larger cities in a greater or less degree. If this be so it is no wonder that the cost of municipal government is becoming so monumental and unbearable in so many of our great cities.

The unfortunate part of it is that so many people really believe that all this unnecessary and exorbitant cost of government is saddled on to the rich and that the average citizen entirely escapes it. That is just as far from the fact as is the quite general belief that the larger costs of our state and federal administrations can be passed on to those best able to pay.

Cost of government, no matter how great or how small, is spread out over the cost of everything that the whole public consumes. No one who pays any taxes at all escapes. No one who buys anything escapes; the cost of government, local, state and national, permeates through everything that has to do with the lives of people or with the conduct of business large and small. No one escapes.

Good honest efficient administration of community business and of state and national affairs is the greatest blessing that can come to a free people.

Dishonest and inefficient government retards and disintegrates every constructive effort made by the institutions and the individuals who are always working for the upbuilding of life and of living standards.

Every city in the great state of Ohio can well take a leaf from the book of the municipal life of the city of Cincinnati.

Under their commission form of government able honest and patriotic men are drafted from the best life of the city to serve on their board of administration. An able and experienced business man is employed as manager and now, in place of the deplorable conditions which formerly existed throughout that fair city, Cincinnati is today an orderly and well-managed community, free from graft and lawlessness.

It has good streets, splendid community playgrounds, many well equipped hospitals, both private and municipal, many beautiful parks and a fine municipal airport. Cincinnati is a great cultural center of art, music and education. The Cincinnati University stands among the best in the nation. All this is obtained with a decreasing bonded indebtedness and a decreased tax rate.

Judge Seabury came to Cincinnati in honor of its municipal accomplishments.

More power to Cincinnati and its Charter Association.

When Any Man's Sick He Wants Sympathy And Rarely Deserves It

When a man's under the weather, of course he doesn't want to be treated like a baby.

But he WOULD like a little Human Sympathy.

Naturally he doesn't want the entire house turned upside down just because he's suffering a little and has had to go to the doctor.

No, he doesn't want that. He doesn't want pity. He doesn't want too much fuss made over him.

He'll Bear his Pain like a Man should have had those tonsils out

He'll be—as much as possible—like the Spartan youth who carried a fox in his breast and did not murmur at the ungrateful beast gnawed at his vitals. . . But he would like a few kind words.

Here he is—the Bread-winner—the Head of the House (as he is called) —and he's not feeling very well these days—and people are treating him as if he were a criminal.

(Somewhere he read—it was in Samuel Butler's "Erewhon"—of an imaginary land in which you were fined and flung into jail if you dared to get sick.)

He's being reminded in various ways that he should have gone to the doctor long ago. He knew he last year. He should have taken care of himself.

And why didn't he? There seems to be a general opinion throughout the house that he isn't as sick as he thinks he is.

Well, a man ought to know how sick he is! If anybody does, HE certainly should. . . and he ought to have a little attention. Of course, he doesn't want people running around like chickens with their heads off! That would be too much to expect. . . But they might realize that father isn't well.

Instead, people seem to think it's a joke. Perhaps not a joke, exactly, but nothing to be taken very seriously. He's got a bad cold or a headache, or something like that, and he'll be back on the job in a few days — and if he's babied he'll begin to think something serious is wrong with him.

Yes, that's the way the family treats father and he sort of resents it. Of course, he can't show his resentment. That wouldn't do at all. It would make him ridiculous.

But he could stand a little less of sensible advice and a little more Human Sympathy. . . Honestly, he could.

(But deep down underneath he KNOWS that he's neglected himself and acted as if he were immortal and deserves everything that's coming to him. . . But he'll not be admitting that.)

ROAST STUFFED CURED PORK SHOULDER

(Recipe From The Home Economics Bureau of U. S. Department of Agriculture)

Have a cured pork shoulder skinned and boned. Wash the shoulder and soak it over night in cold water to cover. On removing the piece from the water wipe it dry. Lay the shoulder fat side down, pile up some of the hot stuffing, begin to sew the edges of the shoulder together to form a pocket, and gradually work in the rest of the stuffing. The recipe for stuffing given below makes the right quantity for a four or five-pound shoulder. Lay the stuffed shoulder, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan without water. Roast the meat at very moderate heat (325 degrees F.) until it is tender when pierced with a skewer or a fork. A four to five-pound shoulder will require about three and one-half hours to cook at this oven temperature.

Raisin Stuffing—Two tablespoons butter or other fat, one tablespoon chopped onion, one cup finely cut celery and tops, two tablespoons chopped parsley, two and one-half cups fine dry bread crumbs, one-half pound seeded chopped raisins, grated rind of one-half lemon, one-half teaspoon salt. Cook the onion, celery and parsley in the fat for a few minutes. Mix the raisins thoroughly with the bread crumbs, stir in the cooked vegetables, and add the lemon rind and salt. Serve five.

Headache Remedies Suggested

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Patients who are subject to sick headache can be assured that they will get over it. The average age at which the attack begins is about 15 years; and they continue until the end of middle age—the change of life in women and the similar, but less revolutionary changes in men.

In only 10 per cent of cases do the attacks persist after this age period. Treatment may be directed towards two objects — one to stop or relieve an attack which threatens or has actually begun, and the other treatment directed towards preventing the attack altogether.

Most people who have migraine have learned their own way to treat the individual attacks. Some find if they can get their bowels open before the attack has gained headway it can be aborted or mitigated. This is perhaps partly associated with the phenomena we described yesterday—the apparent stoppage of movement in the intestines during the attack. A more pretentious way of doing this is by flushing out the upper part of the intestines with a saline laxative by means of duodenal tube.

Along the same lines is the idea many of these patients have that if they can get some aspirin or phenacetin or acetanilid into the stomach and absorbed it will help. What this means is that they must get the aspirin or other remedy absorbed before the digestive tract entirely ceases to function. After the attack is on and the nausea and feeling of numbness in the abdomen are established, it means that drugs by mouth are practically inert because the stomach and intestines are paralyzed.

"Migraine tablets" or migraine remedies in most instances are made up of aspirin, phenacetin, caffeine, acetanilid and antipyrine, either alone or in combination. They are of proved value (in spite of the difficulty mentioned above, of slow absorption) in mitigating the worst pangs of the attack, as most sufferers have discovered. Coffee alone is a splendid headache remedy; the reason for its action we saw explained last summer.

The other object of treatment is to attempt to change the migraine patient's physiology or body chemistry so there will never be another attack. Or so that the number, frequency and severity of the attacks will be lessened.

The number of methods that have been employed for this is legion. And the vastest test to the dubiousness of success of the undertaking. If there were any one sure way to terminate migraine we would all know about it.

The difficulties are almost hopelessly complicated. The disease is ingrained in every fiber of the patient's body.

My own advice to migraine patients would be not to try any treatment to get rid of their affliction which is dangerous, complicated, expensive, or troublesome.

The best treatment yet proposed, in my opinion, is by the injection of foreign proteins. Peptone given in the vein has been the most successful of any. By this method 36 per cent of patients are free from attacks for several months, and 48 per cent have a diminution in the number or severity of their attacks. The rest are not benefited.

Choose Mate Carefully

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS VIRGINIA LEE: I am a widow with a little girl 11 years old. My husband died four years ago. I'd be glad to have your reactions as to what would be advisable for me to do.

Should a person in my position (32 years of age), with no relatives to make a home with, seek a companion for myself and provide a father for my little girl, or is it quite a risk to find someone who would be unselfish enough to care a great deal for the little girl, even if he cared for me? I am not financially well fixed. Earn my own living.

"Is it taking a big risk to marry the second time? Should I wait until the child is self-supporting and less likely to be a financial burden on a man?"

"A. B. C." Of course a woman who has a child and makes a second marriage does rather take more risk than when she marries the first time. There is no doubt about that. Children can make a lot of trouble and a man who is not used to them may tire of one and also may not realize its needs.

On the other hand, many men would enjoy the child, especially a girl, and be as good to her as the child's own father.

I don't believe in anyone living alone if she seeks a suitable mate. "It is not good for man to live alone," says the Good Book, and that goes for woman, too. I take it.

Use your very best judgment in the matter of course. Make as sure as you can that any man you would consider marrying would be liked by the little girl, and would like her and be kind to her. That is the best you can do.

"DEAR MISS LEE: What is your opinion of a girl who will go with a fellow for four years and after a lover's quarrel will have him arrested for slapping her? "She claims she had to do it for fear of her father. At the trial she said nothing at all, either to hurt or to help, but her people did their worst."

The real trouble is that I love her still and she tells others that she loves me. But she never tries to talk to me, for we see each other very day. Do you think she is worth caring for, or should I try to forget her?

"R. I. N. Y." Probably the arrest was none of her doing, and anyhow you showed an uncontrollable temper by slapping her, didn't you? If you still love each other I think you had better call it quits and marry if you can go away where her people won't be able to make trouble. If not, better forget her.

LOVESICK, BROKEN HEARTED AND WORRIED ALL love certain boys and all the boys are inclined to seek other charmers. What shall the girls do to win their love?

You can't keep boys interested by displaying jealousy and trying to get them from going with other girls, if they are so inclined. That is infringing on their liberty, and you have no right to do that unless you are engaged. Boys always resent that attitude.

Leave them free to go with whom they please and reserve the same privilege for yourselves.

DIXIE: Ask one of your good boy pals to go to the party with you, Dixie, and have a good time.

Cold Water Good Tonic

By GLADYS GLAD

It certainly is discouraging, when you're stepping out with the best boy friend, and trying to impress him with your charms, to find that, before the evening's activities are half over, you've lost your appearance of youthful freshness, and have begun to look tired and wilted.

Yet this often occurs to girls whose evenings are all party evenings, who go the pace all the time. And it also happens to the poor little wall flowers who are so accustomed to retiring early that they can hardly keep their eyes open after their usual bedtime hour has passed.

What most girls do in a case like this is to step into the ladies' room, whip out the old vanity case, and dab some powder and rouge onto their faces. And usually that doesn't improve their appearance much.

It doesn't make them feel any brighter or fresher. It isn't any too good for the healthfulness of their skins. And often it merely makes their make-up appear blotchy and artificial.

If you're going out for an evening of pleasure, it's my advice that you slip one of those tiny tubes of cleansing cream into your purse along with your usual powder, rouge and lipstick. Fold a square of cleansing tissue into a small wad, and include that, too, if you can. And when you begin looking droopy and worn during the evening you can make a thorough job of that rebeautifying.

Remove every bit of your old make-up with the cleansing cream, then. Wipe off all the grease and grime thoroughly with the bit of tissue. This alone will take some of the tiredness out of you. Then dash plenty of clear, cold water over your face. The cold water will refresh you, wake you up. And you'll feel and look as bright as a new penny. After drying your face, apply fresh make-up in your usual manner. And the boy friend will probably be so impressed by your freshness and vivacity that he'll fall, as the saying goes, "like a ton of bricks."

FRAMED

Through the kind indulgence of Ross High, the copyright owner, Jefferson High School of Bowersville was permitted to win its first county basketball title in the school's history.

Jefferson, alone of all the competing schools in Greene County, had never before won the annual court classic since 1915, when the event was originated.

Therefore, the Bowersville school is to be congratulated. It's decisive triumph over Ross in the tourney finals came as a shock to the fans. Not even the most optimistic Bowersville rooter had expected a victory over the defending county champs, hitherto unbeatable this season.

But there seems to be some kind of a tournament jinx preventing any school from winning the title three years in a row. And Ross was required to pay the penalty that has always been exacted of a school that has won the championship twice in succession.

Jefferson had a mediocre season's record, but it played like a team inspired during the tournament. It had a difficult assignment right at the start. It was forced to play Bellbrook, ranking next to Ross, as the second strongest team of the eight entered.

Jefferson displayed qualities of which true champion teams are made by coming from behind to beat Bellbrook by one point. The new champions then beat Bryan by a sizeable margin. Brilliant fourth-quarter bursts of scoring brought Jefferson its victories over both Bryan and Ross.

Perhaps the Greene County champs are destined to go far in the sectional state basketball tourney at Wilmington this week-end. They had the good fortune to draw a first round bye, and will clash with another school of the same name, five-time champions of Clinton County, in the second round at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Bowersville recently ran up fifty-one points on Kingman, Clinton County team which Jefferson of that county did not beat so badly during the season.

Ross cagers also are eligible for the sectional tourney, meeting Franklin of Warren County at 9:30 p. m. Friday, and the defeated title-holders may stage a comeback. Possibly they went stale in the county tournament, and will recover the form that enabled them to win nineteen straight games before Jefferson gave them their stunning defeat.

Elwood Shaffer, former Xenia Central basketball player who "coveered" the county tournament for this department, has selected a couple of all-county teams of his own. His selections differ in several instances from the official choices of the two tournament officials.

Elwood keeps Howard Swaim of Ross at center on the first team, and Joe Waddle of Cedarville at one forward post and shifts Jerome Pittstick of Ross from forward to guard because of his height and defensive ability. He places Harris of Jefferson at the other forward station and nominates Linton of Jefferson for guard. Linton is the directing genius of his team.

Barley and Smith, both of Jefferson, are placed at guards on Elwood's second team. He picks Harris of Cedarville at center, Smith of Cedarville and Wilcox of Bryan High at forwards.

A pencil had been used to print the letters. "Baby safe," it read. "Instructing later. Act accordingly."

The "d" and "h" were left out of the flyer's name which was written on one side. The message, unsigned, was on the other side. The message was found in a mail box at Plane St. and Central Ave. here.

MYSTERY SHOOTING IS INVESTIGATED

MANSFIELD, O., Mar. 2.—In a mysterious fight near Greer, O., Andy Reed, 35, of Mansfield, was critically injured last night by a man who opened fire on him after crowding his automobile off the road, police said today.

The shooting was kept secret until today when it was reported by Otto Evans at whose home Reed was found. A physician, called by Reed, notified authorities. Sheriff Walter Underwood immediately started an investigation, and Ashland County Sheriff H. F. Wallett joined him. Greer is located in Ashland County. Evans told the physician that he and Reed were crowded off the road by an automobile occupied by three men. One came back and opened fire on Reed, he said.

HERE ARE LEAGUE ALL-STAR TEAMS

Here are the official first and second all-Miami Valley League basketball teams for the 1932 season, the selections being those of the coaches of the seven member schools:

First Team	Pos.	Second Team
Halley (Greenville)	F.	Dalton (Xenia)
Kelly (Miamisburg)	F.	Collins (Sidney)
Carder (Piqua)	C.	Hockett (Fairview)
Campbell (Troy)	C.	Faber (Sidney)

TWO XENIA PLAYERS SELECTED ON ALL-LEAGUE SECOND TEAM

Two Xenia Central players obtained berths on the second of two all-Miami Valley League mythical basketball teams chosen by the coaches of the seven schools at the annual spring dinner-meeting of league officials Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. in Dayton.

Freddie Dalton, placed at forward, and Howard Thompson, stationed at a guard position, were the Bucconeer players honored. "Mo" Hyman, Xenia center, received honorable mention.

Greenview, new league champion, furnished two players for the first all-star first team, as might be expected. Miamisburg, Piqua and Troy each placed one star performer on the first team.

Walter Halley, Greenville, a junior, and Richard Kelly, Miamisburg, a sophomore, are the first team forwards. Bob Carder, Piqua, senior and high individual scorer of the league, won the center position. John Campbell, Troy, senior, and Joel Williams, Greenville, junior, rated the first team at guards.

None of the players chosen was an unanimous choice, but Campbell, flashy Trojan guard, came the nearest, and he was designated honorary captain. It marked the second straight year he has made the all-league first team.

Xenia, Sidney and Dayton Fairview were the three schools not recognized in the first team selections. Since the league was organized five years ago, Xenia Central, four-time title-holder but now the dethroned champion, had always before made-up of the first team.

The mythical second quintet includes the two Xenia players, two from Sidney, one of Fairview and one of Miamisburg. Dalton, picked at forward, is a junior, and Thompson, placed at guard is a senior. Freddie received honorable mention last year. Howard has the distinction of making the second team two years in succession.

Fred Collins, Sidney, senior, and Walter Hockett, Fairview, senior, tied in the voting for the other forward berth. Elmer Faber, Sidney, senior, made the second team at center for the second straight year. Rex Weaver, Miamisburg, senior, is the other guard and he was selected as honorary captain.

Of the players receiving honorary mention, Ed Crim, Piqua, is a senior; "Mo" Hyman, Xenia, is a junior; John Williams, Greenville, is a senior; Charles Covault, Troy, is a junior; and Carl Carter, Piqua, and James Blake, Sidney, are both seniors.

Coaches who made the selections are: Walter C. Wilson, Xenia;

Hundreds of children of the town picked bouquets of daisies and other flowers, and in sticky hands carried them to guards at the home, asking they be given to "Lindy's baby."

A few days afterwards, Lindbergh was reported to have received his first setback since his momentous flight to Paris. It was understood he wanted the boy named after his father-in-law. But Mrs. Lindbergh was said to be set on having him called "Junior," and she won.

An airtrip flight was planned for the baby when he was four weeks old when he was to be taken to Maine for the summer. It was abandoned when doctors cautioned the parents that the roar of the engines of a plane might affect the delicate mechanism of "Junior" for life and cause deafness.

He was kept closely guarded in the Morrow home where the Lindberghs lived until their newly erected home here was ready.

Charles, however, was taken to Maine on several occasions, and was there while his parents made their flight to the Orient last year.

Interest throughout the world in all activities concerning the baby are high, but the Lindberghs rarely gave out many details about him.

Col. Lindbergh, however, at one time said that he would not plan a career for his heir, but would let him decide that important question himself when the proper time came.

Both at Englewood and here, extraordinary precautions were taken by Lindbergh to guard the baby. Special watchmen were said to have been assigned to protect the infant because of numerous crank letters received.

REPORT ACTION AFTER INVADERS ARE VICTORIOUS

appeared certain that any Chinese units remaining in the northern district of Chapel would be trapped unless they escaped under cover of darkness.

The Japanese are advancing on Woonung village and Woonung fort from the vicinity of Lübo where they disembarked about 10,000 men. The defenders of Woonung appear to be cut off.

The entire operation is under the direction of Gen. Shirakawa, who arrived yesterday from Japan to assume command.

The Japanese carried out their threat to bomb railways over which the Chinese were receiving relief. Their bombing planes this morning destroyed the tracks between Shanghai and Quinsan and also near Kaohsiung.

Japanese military headquarters announced tonight that 1800 Chinese dead had been counted in abandoned positions.

Japanese losses, last night and today, were set at 60 killed and 240 wounded.

In one hamlet alone the Japanese reported they found 200 Chinese dead.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Through the kind indulgence of Ross High, the copyright owner, Jefferson High School of Bowersville was permitted to win its first county basketball title in the school's history.

Jefferson, alone of all the competing schools in Greene County, had never before won the annual court classic since 1915, when the event was originated.

Therefore, the Bowersville school is to be congratulated. Its decisive triumph over Ross in the tourney finals came as a shock to the fans. Not even the most optimistic Bowersville rooter had expected a victory over the defending county champs, hitherto unbeatable this season.

But there seems to be some kind of a tournament jinx preventing any school from winning the title three years in a row. And Ross was required to pay the penalty that has always been exacted of a school that has won the championship twice in succession.

Jefferson displayed qualities of which true champion teams are made by coming from behind to beat Bellbrook by one point. The new champions then beat Bryan by a sizeable margin. Brilliant fourth-quarter bursts of scoring brought Jefferson its victories over both Bryan and Ross.

Perhaps the Greene County champs are destined to go far in the sectional state basketball tourney at Wilmington this week-end. They had the good fortune to draw a first round bye, and will clash with another school of the same name, five-time champions of Clinton County, in the second round at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Bowersville recently ran up fifty-one points on Klingman, Clinton County team which Jefferson of that county did not beat so badly during the season.

Ross cagers also are eligible for the sectional tourney, meeting Franklin of Warren County at 9:30 p. m. Friday, and the defeated title-holders may stage a comeback. Possibly they went stale in the county tournament and will recover the form that enabled them to win nineteen straight games before Jefferson gave them their stunning defeat.

Elwood Shaffer, former Xenia Central basketball player who "covered" the county tournament for this department, has selected a couple of all-county teams of his own. His selections differ in several instances from the official choices of the two tournament officials.

Elwood keeps Howard Swalm of Ross at center on the first team, and Joe Waddle of Cedarville at one forward post and shifts Jerome Pittstick of Ross from forward to guard because of his height and defensive ability. He places Harness of Jefferson at the other forward station and nominates Linton of Jefferson for guard. Linton being the directing genius of his team.

Barley and Smith, both of Jefferson, are placed at guards on Elwood's second team. He picks Harris of Cedarville at center, Smith of Cedarville and Wilcox of Bryan High at forwards.

FIND MESSAGE TO LINDBERGH ON POSTCARD

(Bulletin)

NEWARK, N. J., March 2.—A communication believed to be from the kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby and intended for his father, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, today was found by a letter carrier in a mail box.

It was in the form of a postcard and was addressed: "Charles Lindbergh, Princeton, N. J."

A pencil had been used to print the letters, "Baby safe," it read. "Instruction later. Act accordingly."

The "d" and "h" were left out of the flyer's name which was written on one side. The message, unsigned, was on the other side. The message was found in a mail box at Plane St. and Central Ave. here.

CORSET IS STILL IN VOGUE

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Who said the corset had become a museum piece? Not John Ross, director of the Memphis Unemployment committee. Ross received a contribution of 50 corsets, described as "durable," from a public spirited citizen, and said he would have no difficulty in disposing of them.

TO END WILDCAT PEST

PETOSKEY, Mich.—An effort is to be made by the State Conservation Commission to rid this district of coyotes and wildcats which have been destroying thousands of rabbits and partridges. Sportsmen appealed to the state for aid in dispatching the killers after seven wildcats and five coyotes had been brought down in a few weeks.

Four games will be played during the Saturday afternoon session. At 1 p. m. Saturday, Bowersville Greene County champion with a record of twelve victories and four defeats, will battle Jefferson Twp., Clinton County champion. Jefferson has won fourteen and lost two.

Waynesville, Warren County champion, which drew a first round bye, meets the winner of the West Union-Hamersville game at 2 p. m. Saturday. Waynesville's team has won sixteen games and lost seven this year.

Winchester, Adams County runner-up, will play Decatur, runner-up from Brown County at 3 p. m. Winchester has a record of seven wins and four losses while Decatur has won thirteen contests and lost nine.

The fourth game Saturday afternoon will bring together the winner of the Wayne-Bloomingburg battle and the survivor of the Ross-Franklin contest.

At 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock Saturday night survivors of the two previous rounds of games will meet to decide sectional honors. The winners of the Saturday night games will be crowned sectional co-champions and will be eligible to represent the section at the District tournament in Dayton, March 11-12.

The double referee system of officiating will be used at all games. Officials selected by the State Athletic Commission are H. Kroger Babb of Wilmington and J. Mack Hummon of Dayton. Both are members of the Miami Valley Officials Association.

MYSTERY SHOOTING IS INVESTIGATED

MANSFIELD, O., Mar. 2.—In a mysterious light near Greer, O., Andy Reed, 35, of Mansfield, was critically injured last night by a man who opened fire on him after crowding his automobile off the road, police said today.

The shooting was kept secret until today when it was reported by Otto Evans at whose home Reed was found. A physician, called by Reed, notified authorities.

Sheriff Walter Underwood immediately started an investigation, and Ashland County Sheriff H. F. Wallett joined him. Greer is located in Ashland County.

Evans told the physician that he and Reed were crowded off the road by an automobile occupied by three men. One came back and opened fire on Reed, he said.

HERE ARE LEAGUE ALL-STAR TEAMS

Here are the official first and second all-Miami Valley League basketball teams for the 1932 season, the selections being those of the coaches of the seven member schools:

First Team	Pos.	Second Team
Halley (Greenville)	F.	Dalton (Xenia)
Kelly (Miamisburg)	F.	Collins (Sidney)
Carder (Piqua)	C.	Hockett (Fairview)
Campbell (Troy)	C.	Faber (Sidney)
Thompson (Xenia)	G.	Thompson (Xenia)
Joel Williams (Greenville)	G.	Weaver (Miamisburg) (c)
Honorable mention—forwards: Crim (Piqua); centers: Hyman (Xenia), John Williams (Greenville), Covault (Troy); guards: Carter (Piqua), Blake (Sidney).

TWO XENIA PLAYERS SELECTED ON ALL-LEAGUE SECOND TEAM

Two Xenia Central players obtained berths on the second of two all-Miami Valley League mythical basketball teams chosen by the coaches of the seven schools at the annual spring dinner-meeting of league officials Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. in Dayton.

Freddie Dalton, placed at forward, and Howard Thompson, stationed at a guard position, were the Buccaneers players honored. "Mo" Hyman, Xenia center, received honorable mention.

Greenville, new league champion, furnished two players for the cast of the all-star first team, as might be expected. Miamisburg, Piqua and Troy each placed one star performer on the first team.

Walter Halley, Greenville, a junior, and Richard Kelly, Miamisburg, a sophomore, are the first team forwards. Bob Carder, Piqua, senior and high individual scorer of the league, won the center position. John Campbell, Troy, senior, and Joel Williams, Greenville, junior, rated the first team at guards.

None of the players chosen was an unanimous choice, but Campbell, flashy Trojan guard, came the nearest, and he was designated honorary captain. It marked the second straight year he has made the all-league first team.

Xenia, Sidney and Dayton Fairview were the three schools not recognized in the first team selections. Since the league was organized five years ago, Xenia Central, four-time title-holder but now the dethroned champion, had always before provided three players to ward the make-up of the first team.

The mythical second quintet includes the two Xenia players, two from Sidney, one of Fairview and one of Miamisburg. Dalton, picked at forward, is a junior, and Thompson, placed at guard is a senior. Freddie received honorable mention last year. Howard has the distinction of making the second team two years in succession.

Fred Collins, Sidney, senior, and Walter Hockett, Fairview, senior, tied in the voting for the other forward berth. Elmer Faber, Sidney, senior, made the second team at center for the second straight year. Rex Weaver, Miamisburg, senior, is the other guard and he was selected as honorary captain.

Of the players receiving honorary mention, Ed Crim, Piqua, is a senior; "Mo" Hyman, Xenia, is a junior; John Williams, Greenville, is a senior; Charles Covault, Troy, is a junior; and Carl Carter, Piqua, and James Blake, Sidney, are both seniors.

Coaches who made the selections are: Walter C. Wilson, Xenia; Elwood Shaffer, Xenia Central; and Joe Waddle, Cedarville.

FRESHMEN DEFEAT JUNIORS 23 TO 17

With Francis Dalton returning to the lineup, the freshmen beat the juniors, 23 to 17, in an intramural basketball contest at Central High School Monday. Dalton obtained ten points for the frosh, Lloyd, guard, topped the junior scoring with eight points. Seniors and sophomores are scheduled to meet late Wednesday afternoon.

John L. Enters Ring

ON THE MORNING of March 10, 1888, Sullivan and Charlie Mitchell crawled into the ring which was pitched near Baron Rothschild's barn near Ceril, France. Sullivan offered to bet $2,500 he would win. There were no takers. B. J. Angle, the referee, arrived and announced the fight would be bare knuckles to a finish. Sullivan and Mitchell both were clad in fighting tights of snowy white and spiked shoes.

Jake Kilrain

SULLIVAN weighed 200 pounds, Mitchell only 166. Mitchell won the toss and his manager, Jake Kilrain, picked the corner for him, with his back to the sun. At the call "Time" John L. dashed from his corner and drove the lighter man back. Charlie stepped on John L.'s shoe, the spikes cutting into the champion's foot. Enraged, the American knocked Mitchell down with a hard, straight right to end the round.

LITTLE THEATER TO PERFORM THURSDAY IN COMEDY VEHICLE

Xenia theater-goers are anticipating an enjoyable evening when the third of this season's program of plays given by the Xenia Little Theater is presented at the Opera House Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. "Green Stockings," a three act comedy by A. E. W. Mason, will be presented by a cast of twelve characters several of whom are making their initial bow to Xenia audiences in the Little Theater productions.

"Green Stockings" is based on an old country custom that if the younger sister marries first the elder sister must wear green stockings to the wedding. "Celia Faraday," as played by Miss Helen Hurley, finds herself threatened to wear green stockings for the third time and what she does to escape this forms an interesting plot for the story.

Members of the cast are James C. Bryson, Harry A. Higgins, Francis C. Orr, Harry P. Williams, Isadore Hyman, John H. Collins, the Misses Helen Hurley, Elizabeth McCurran, Martha Davis, Thelma Tindall, Josephine Armstrong and Mrs. Harry Williams.

A song, "Barney McCoy" will be sung by Patricia and Larry Farrell as a special feature between the first and second acts.

MRS. JAMES WILSON ASKS DIVORCE HERE

James Wilson III, now residing at 200 Triangle Ave., Dayton, is defendant in a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court by Florence Sailer Wilson, who charges failure to provide and extreme cruelty, and seeks to be decreed household goods and a piano, now in her husband's possession, as alimony.

Mrs. Wilson sought and obtained a temporary restraining order preventing the defendant from disposing of the household furnishings. The couple's home in Xenia has been sold, the petition recites.

Declaring her husband has frequently given way to fits of anger, nagged her constantly, was abusive and has been associating with another woman, the plaintiff asserts this fact became known to their mutual friends, causing her great humiliation. They are now living apart, she asserts.

The couple was married October 15, 1914 at Philadelphia, Pa. No children were born of the marriage.

Revs. H. E. Lewis, Dunning, White and Foote assisted in the labors with the unsaved and Miss Marguerita Jones prayed. Mrs. Lewis and Rev. Scott rendered some effective music which added charm and enthusiasm to the meeting.

The pastor-evangelist Rev. M. M. D. Perdue spoke with much fervor and conviction from the subject "The Thrill is Gone." "We are living in a moving excited and nervous age," declared the preacher. It was declared that today as never before is it true that there is nothing new under the sun. Invention was declared at its height. The slightest whim of man is gratified by the many mechanisms now in use to gratify the merest desire of man either for good or evil. "Truly," said the preacher, "man has entered more fully now than ever since the dawn of creation upon his 'dominion' over the earth. He hath multiplied, replenished and subdued the earth." Because of the advent of sin, the moral and spiritual nature of man has not kept pace with his intellectual growth and development. The man capable of creating the great handiworks of science and invention instead of being so advanced spiritually as to be the servant of the God of all creation yet finds himself the slave of base passions and sin. He described the story of the Prodigal Son. When he had wasted all and sat in the hog pen of pollution, sin and disgrace, the thrill of his glamorous dissipation and riotous living was gone and he saw himself as he really was a ruined and condemned sinner. Men were urged to come to Jesus now ere they are brought to eternal ruin by sin. Several persons accepted the invitation to prayer and two were happily converted. The subject for Wednesday night is "A Bad Haircut in the Devil's Barber Shop." Come hear this interesting discussion.

LITTLE THEATER TO PERFORM THURSDAY IN COMEDY VEHICLE

Xenia theater-goers are anticipating an enjoyable evening when the third of this season's program of plays given by the Xenia Little Theater is presented at the Opera House Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. "Green Stockings," a three act comedy by A. E. W. Mason, will be presented by a cast of twelve characters several of whom are making their initial bow to Xenia audiences in the Little Theater's productions.

"Green Stockings" is based on an old country custom that if the younger sister marries first the older sister must wear green stockings to the wedding. "Celia Parady," as played by Miss Helen Hurley, finds herself threatened to wear green stockings for the third time and what she does to escape this forms an interesting plot for the story.

Members of the cast are James C. Bryson, Harry A. Higgins, Francis C. Orr, Harry P. Williams, Isadore Hyman, John H. Collins, the Misses Helen Hurley, Elizabeth McCurran, Martha Davis, Thelma Tindall, Josephine Armstrong and Mrs. Harry Williams.

A song, "Barney McCoy" will be sung by Patricia and Larry Farrell as a special feature between the first and second acts.

MRS. JAMES WILSON ASKS DIVORCE HERE

James Wilson III, now residing at 200 Triangle Ave., Dayton, is defendant in a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court by Florence Saller Wilson, who charges failure to provide and extreme cruelty, and seeks to be decreed household goods and a piano, now in her husband's possession, as alimony.

Mrs. Wilson sought and obtained a temporary restraining order preventing the defendant from disposing of the household furnishings. The couple's home in Xenia has been sold, the petition recites.

Declaring her husband has frequently given way to fits of anger, nagged her constantly, was abusive and has been associating with another woman, the plaintiff asserts that fact became known to their mutual friends, causing her great humiliation. They are now living apart, she asserts.

The couple was married October 15, 1919 at Philadelphia, Pa. No children were born of the marriage.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation
"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments.

You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name, Chas. H. Fletcher. It now comes in two sizes. The new family size contains about 2½ times the amount in the regular size.

EAST END NEWS

The Woman's Missionary Society of Zion Baptist Church will meet at the home of the president, Mrs. Cora Hawkins, E. Main St., Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The revival meeting at Zion Baptist Church was warmly spiritual on last evening. Sisters Watson and Gilbert assisted by Rev. Scott of Middle Run Baptist Church conducted a praise service and the spirit of the Lord was evident in the meeting by the time the evangelist arose to preach.

Revs. H. E. Lewis, Dunning, White and Foote assisted in the labors with the unsaved and Mrs. Marguerita Jones prayed. Mrs. Lewis and Rev. Scott rendered some effective music which added charm and enthusiasm to the meeting.

The pastor-evangelist Rev. M. M. D. Perdue spoke with much fervor and conviction from the subject "The Thrill is Gone." "We are living in a moving excited and nervous age," declared the preacher. It was declared that today as never before it is true that there is nothing new under the sun. Invention was declared at its height. The slightest whim of man is gratified by the many mechanisms now in use to gratify the merest desire of man either for good or evil.

"Truly," said the preacher, "man has entered more fully now than ever since the dawn of creation upon his 'dominion' over the earth. He hath multiplied, replenished and subdued the earth." Because of the advent of sin, the moral and spiritual nature of man has not kept pace with his intellectual growth and development. The man capable of creating the great handiworks of science and invention instead of being so advanced spiritually as to be the servant of the God of all creation yet finds himself the slave of base passions and sin. He described the story of the Prodigal Son. When he had wasted all and sat in the hog pen of pollution, sin and disgrace, the thrill of his glamorous dissipation and riotous living was gone and he saw himself as he really was a ruined and condemned sinner. Men were urged to come to Jesus now ere they are brought to eternal ruin by sin. Several persons accepted the invitation to prayer and two were happily converted. The subject for Wednesday night is "A Bad Haircut in the Devil's Barbershop." Come hear this interesting discussion.
